THE OPERA HOUSE.

Wichita's Interest and What Should Be Done.

We are strongly impressed with the conviction that there is a lack of interest in repairing or making good the misfortune of last month, to our city; we allude to the fall of the new opera house. It was a stately, a grand edifice, the finest of its character in the state, a proud mark of our city's taste and enterprise. This beautiful and attractive building, designed for the pleasure and enjoyment of our people no less than as an ornament to our city, was being built by three men, two of them our own citizens who had ever shown a ready hand and a whole sonled willingness to take hold of any interest or enterprise which promised to be of a general benefit. It had almost become a byword that "O. C. Daisy can be counted on." Equally true it is that P. V. Healy has at last been recognized also as one of our most public spirited and unselfish citizens in all matters pertaining to the general welfare of the city. These are the men who had in their pride, generosity and enterprise resolved that Wichita should have the finest opera house in the state. The walls had reached a height of between seventy and eighty feet, and the massive timbers of the mighty roof were to be seen from every direction. The scenes had all been painted, the chairs made, and the great balconies which were to contain their thousands of the future, in graceful curves swept around the inner walls and even the opening company had been engaged, when all unexpected the entire city was shocked by the announcement that the opera house had fallen. The hundred—thousands, who had gone almost daily to mark and admire the rising walls of the beautiful north and east fronts, as with one breath exclaimed: "What a pity! but it must go right up again!" The whole city will see that it does! So earnest were these expressions and protestations that many said after all the collapse may have been fortunate for now we will have a structure of which there will be no fear. So general seemed the resolve that this great structure should not be in ruins that the men whose hopes went down with the mighty crash of the walls of their beautiful building, took courage and commenced to clear away the debris preparatory to building better than ever. The remains and debris of over three hundred thousand bricks were shoveled up by a big force and hauled off to find the foundation intact, undisturbed and solid. But to go beyond, or least to entirely rebuild the great edifice, unaided, was not within the power of the men who had ventured so much. They could appeal to the public for others and for enterprise of a general nature but not for themselves. And there the matter for the time rested. Then came a proposition involving a series of bonds of $500 each, to be subscribed for by citizens, the bonds to be secured by the building and bear a small interest we believe. This seemed entirely feasible and twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars of such bonds would enable the owners to go on and complete the building. They said with such aid or loan of credit they would make the necessary sacrifices to raise the balance and swallow the great loss and disappointment they had already sustained if they must. The subscription paper for such bonds was drawn up. But we now incidentally learn that the circulation of the paper was left to Mr. Daisy himself, and we hear, further, that he is much discouraged and down hearted. If that is so, and we don't doubt it, it is the first time that Mr. Daisy was ever discouraged. And this is not written in any spirit of fault-finding or to even intimate that anyone has been remiss. It is only set forth that our people may understand the status of the whole of this to our city very important matter and in the hope that such an interest may be aroused as will result in, not only sending the walls of that great edifice up to the roof once more, but that the sneers and insinuations of outsiders may be properly rebuked. To this end it does seem that if half a dozen, or even a few number of men, properly impressed with the importance of converting this, the city's first great calamity, into a success, should go out and spend a single day with Mr. Daisy among our business men, that all of the bonds might be disposed of, especially in view of the fact that there can be no possible loss attending such a loan. We are satisfied that had Messrs. Crawford, Healy and Daisy found it possible to go on with the work unaided they would never have appealed to our citizens for this friendly turn—twenty or thirty thousand of a loan on a property which will be worth and rated at considerable more than one hundred thousand dollars is no risk and we hope when our people understand the situation that the whole trouble may be remedied at once, and that before the first snow falls we shall be able to show to every visitor the finest temple ever erected in our state, dedicated to music and the drama.

STRANGERS.

The city is full of strangers; last night the hotels were all crowded and it was necessary in some cases to turn away the late arrivals. Joe Gandolfo said that early in the evening coats had to be called into requisition; all the rooms were taken at the Manhattan early in the evening and the same may be said of the Occidental.

The visitors to the queen city include, as is shown by the hotel registers, many persons from the east. A conversation with them reveals the fact that some are looking for investments, others in search of locations for business, while still others have been attracted by the name and fame of the Perleer Princess and come to see if what they have heard of her be true.

The attendants upon the two courts now in session are quite numerous, in including jurors, witnesses, attorneys from a distance and parties to the suits. It is the attendants upon the U. S. district courts that give the streets quite a motley and unusual appearance. There are about fifty Indians, many of them moving soberly and sedately around decked out in their gay colors and strapped in their government blankets. When they congregate in groups as is often the case in and around the G. A. B. building where the court is being held, they attract crowds of interested spectators from the citizens as well as the tenderfoot visitors from the east, to whom the Indian outside of the Wild West show is still more of a curiosity.

THE ARCH.

Messrs. Ennis & Young have advised from St. Louis that the arch will be shipped this morning via the Missouri Pacific, and will arrive Saturday, being in position and complete by Monday evening next. Mr. Wm. Many comes with it who in reality understands erecting and trimming illuminations, but of course Young will be standing around doing the talking and creating the impression that he knew all about it.

HIS OBSERVATIONS OF THE CITY.

Messrs. A. H. Clark, a prominent citizen of Bluffton, Indiana, and Attorney Robert Young, of Detroit, Michigan, arrived last evening from the western part of the state. They have been in the state some days on a prospecting tour, and like the many who come to Kansas, are well pleased.

Mr. Clark, some months ago, made a short visit to this city, and says that he was then ready to believe favorable reports of the greatest magnitude concerning the city. His second visit has surprised him with increased faith in both the city of Wichita and the state. "There is no state in the union that is able to maintain as many people as Kansas," he said. "And certain it is that there is no state in the union that is developing as rapidly as this. I have been traveling some months in the rapidly improving states and fast growing cities and towns, cities of this state and the territory comprising the state are developing faster than any other. No man can have the remotest idea of the true greatness of this city without visiting it. The man on his first visit has no idea that he will see such improving business blocks. He has no idea that he will find so much business done here daily. I observed some days ago when I was in your city, an route west, that each day brought forth a volume of business not equalled in any city of its size or in many of four times its population. This is the fact of facts that strongly emphasizes the belief in the city's brilliant future. I also notice that the great boom in railroad building in this state has introduced a new trading territory to this city than any other and thus making it certain of even an increase in business."

HYPATIA.

Monday evening the Hypatia club were royally entertained on Monday evening at the residence of Miss R. C. Guthrie, corner of Waco and Third streets. The hospitable mansion was illuminated from cellar to garret and the guests and members of the club, about eighty in number were, delightfully entertained. The club now numbers about forty members from the best and brightest ladies of the city. Among the guests were Rev. Adams, Mr. Jocelyn and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hood, W. P. Shields, Mr. A. Kacous, W. C. Glenn, Prof. Metcalf, of Garfield University, and his mother, Mrs. Barley, Miss Lillie Foster, Mr. Cooper, Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Mead, Mrs. Fannie Blair Miller, Miss Minnie Frame and others whose name we failed to get.

The following program was rendered:
Roll call and response.....Hungarian Dance
Piano Duet.....Mrs. Strong, Mrs. Winn
Select Reading.....Platonic Love
Vocal Solo.....Dream Faces

Piano Solo.....Mrs. W. P. Shields
Recitation.....Mrs. Jocelyn
Vocal Solo.....Mrs. Jocelyn

Character Reading.....Mrs. Price
Mrs. H. G. Toler.

After the program was finished Prof. Metcalf very kindly favored the company with some music. We believe the professor intends, as soon as his assistants all arrive, to give a public recital. Whoever fails to hear him will miss a treat indeed.

The guests were served with refreshments, a surprise treat from the host, as it is well known, the Hypatia is known best by its "Feast of reason and flow of soul" rather than its knowledge of the royal road to men's hearts. The club is in a prosperous condition.
VIVA LA HYPATIA.

MUSICAL AND SOCIAL.

Last evening the members of the Baptist church entertained their friends with a most enjoyable musical and social. The church was crowded to its utmost and the evening was one of enjoyment to all present.

GARFIELD UNIVERSITY.

On the 6th inst., according to announcement, Garfield University opened its doors. An unexpectedly large number of students were matriculated. And still they come, and will continue to come for some days. Nearly the entire faculty have arrived and are now at work. The Coop block near the University building is occupied. It is hoped the north wing of the new building will be completed soon, when the various schools of the university will take permanent quarters.

Prof. Metcalf, principal of the college of music is enrolling pupils rapidly. All who take honest part in the growth and development of Wichita will be delighted with the fine start the new university is making.

STREET CAR LINES.

Hutchinson is the only city in the state that has a double track street railway line.—Hutchinson News.

This is a mistake. Topeka has a double track street railway and a double track rapid transit line.—Commonwealth.

And so has Wichita and Wyandotte. Speaking of street railways Wichita has four times the number of miles that Hutchinson has and by Christmas will have twice as many more. Taking the horse car lines, the two motor lines and the electric line and Wichita will have between eighty and ninety miles in operation within thirty or sixty days.

SAID TO BE DIFFERENT.

The "Golden Herb Cure" man who holds forth on the corner of Walnut street and Douglas avenue insists that he should not be classed with the "so-called" members of the medical fraternity referred to some days ago as having come into the city by numbers. This he claims is his fourth visit to the city and he is personally acquainted with many of our leading citizens, having met some before making his first visit who invited him here, and having formed the acquaintance of many since, who he claims, are willing to accord him a position different from many who insist on "working the country."

Last evening near 9 o'clock a traveling man was struck by a back track near the corner of Fifth avenue and Oak street. The gentleman was walking from the depot, having arrived in the city a few minutes before and owing to the darkness, it is claimed that neither he nor the driver saw the danger. He was knocked down by one of the horses and one foot wheel passed over his legs with no serious injury. He was just a little bit frightened and a little mad over the accident.

A large number of young people went out to the Little river boating last evening. This appears to be rapidly growing in favor as a source of amusement and pleasure.

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.

Wade Sent up for Two Years—The Trial of Barney Cooper Commenced.

Bill Wade was yesterday brought into court to answer to two charges of introducing liquors into the territory; there are other charges against this some what notorious individual among which may be mentioned cattle and horse stealing, but this is one of introducing liquors into the forbidden tract of Uncle Sam's domain sufficed Prosecutor Perry for the time being. The others will be brought in time to come. He was represented by Mr. Mussell who fought the case for all what was in it; but there was too much against his client, so that the jury after a short deliberation returned Wade guilty. Judge Foster then sentenced him to one year on each charge.

The next case called was that of Jacob and Joseph Tabler, two colored boys charged with murder. Mr. Campbell had been assigned as their counsel at the last session of the court in this city, but at the last moment he had refused to act in that capacity and so their defense was undertaken by Messrs. Sumner and Miller, of Arkansas City.

The two prisoners were brought into court and had the appearance of being about 18 and 20 years of age; both very dark, with small eyes, thick lips and unpleasant looking faces. The indictment charges them with the killing of A. P. Goodknight and Frank Cass in the Territory, Aug. 19, 1885; they shot Goodknight in the head with a pistol and Cass in the breast while the two men were asleep.

The absence of some important material witnesses for the defense caused the continuance of the case, and the substitution instead that of Barney Cooper.

The last named prisoner was next brought in court. Cooper, it is charged in the indictment, did on the sixth of July, 1886, kill an Indian woman a number of the Cheyenne tribe. The impaneling of the jury was begun, but was not completed at the adjournment of court. This case will no doubt be hotly contested; Messrs. Eley and McMechan, the attorneys for the defense, have put no little study upon the case, and will contest every point closely. Jack Stillwell arrived from the Territory yesterday afternoon with a large number of witnesses in the case. Among the number was the stately Whirlwind whose figure was at a former session so frequently seen upon the street; he is one of the prosecuting witnesses, his sister-in-law being the woman who was Barney's victim.

A night session was also held in which the panel of the jury was completed and one witness, the wife of the Indian Chief Whirlwind, was examined. She testified that she saw the body of the murdered woman shortly after the crime was committed; saw Private Barney Cooper in the vicinity of the Indian lodges at the same time, and gave a detailed account of the surroundings of the place in which the unfortunate woman met her death.

DISTRICT COURT.

Work is being pushed rapidly through by Judge Wall of the District Court.

Yesterday forenoon the case of the State vs. John Walden was tried. The defendant was the colored man who was captured by Officer Joe Stewart with some of the goods stolen a short time before from the store of Munson and McNamara. The thief gained entrance to the store room by breaking open a window in the rear; it was a sick piece of business and the perpetrator had a nudge to make his escape unseen and unheard. He would, perhaps, never have been called upon to answer for the crime had he not endeavored to dispose of some of the stolen goods. The fact of his effort to sell the goods reached the ears of the police force and thus Officer Joe Stewart made his arrest.

After hearing the case through the jury retired and shortly afterwards returned with a verdict of guilty. He has not yet received his sentence.

In the afternoon the case against Henry Foote was called. The defendant, a mulatto boy not over 15, was seen with two boxes of tobacco in his possession; and afterwards the tobacco was found in the old elevator. Officer Spurrier arrested the youth as well as two companions; the latter, however, proving their innocence were dismissed. The trial continued during the afternoon but the argument had not been completed nor the case given as yet to the jury.

POLICE COURT.

Chas. Doe was the name given by a drunk who forfeited $5 by his non-appearance in court yesterday morning.

H. Wikke left his team unhitched and paid $1 and costs for the offense.

Jennie Silvers and four inmates of her place were up before his Honor. They were each fined $8 and costs. Jennie paid the amount and was dismissed. The others had no money but were allowed to go upon Jennie agreeing to stand good for the amount of their fines. Her husband, George Silvers, was called upon to answer to the charge of vagrancy. He was found guilty and fined $40 and costs which failing to pay he was sent to work out the amount upon the stone pile.

PROBATE COURT.

Proof was yesterday made of the will in the estate of Kate Augusta Bounds, deceased.

Petition filed to appoint and administrator for Samuel McDow, deceased.

Marriage license was issued to J. N. Brown of Valley Center, and Ida Vandergrift of Wichita.

A BENEFIT.

An effort is being made to arrange a benefit for the members of the base ball club at present in the city; Scharringhauser, Weaver, Pettiford and Whistler. It is the intention to arrange games with the clubs at Great Bend, Joplin and Hutchinson; and with this object in view telegrams were sent last evening asking for dates.

If this scheme would fail, games can be arranged with the Clippers or the colored nine, both very good clubs.

The boys are in need of some assistance and their friends have conceived this plan of giving them a helping hand.

Our friend A. Kate, the big dry goods merchant, who has so long sailed under the winning name of Philadelphia store, in his recent trip east purchased something besides dry goods, and in the way of a new brand of imported cigar, not necessarily to give away, nor to sell. But his generous nature wouldn't permit him to enjoy a selfishness, and so this item is written through the curling fumes of a representative of a whole box that reached our sanctum table.
